FUND FOR ANIMALS:

Over the past 200 years Man's insatiable greed and remarkable arrogance have decimated our wildlife and reduced to near rubble what took nature millions of years to create. Is this to be our legacy to future generations? The Fund for Animals has initiated a commitment to the animal world, to sample the national conscience, to find how many millions may prove to have a special spark of compassion and decency. We hope you will make your commitment and encourage those about you seeking truth and knowledge to do the same. R.C. Kenly, N.J. Coordinator.

Individual pledge sheets, committing signers not to buy or wear real fur, to refrain from hunting or poisoning animals, etc., may be obtained in the Public Relations Office (west end, Administration Building basement). A sample is posted on the P.R. bulletin board.

"If in our pastoral care we are cumbered with much service, hardly knowing where to find time for all that weighs on us, let us sit at the Lord's feet. Those who live with Him always seem to have time to love and care for their fellow-men, which is denied to those of us who think we can accomplish it in our own strength." Edward H. Milligan.

NOTES

1. Mrs. Evans is also a graduate of Jamestown College, magna cum laude, and of The University of Basel. She was a Presbyterian missionary in Brazil and taught at Campinas Theological Seminary. She was a delegate to the 1975 World Council of Churches meeting in Bangkok and participated in the recent Conference on Medical Ethics at the Kennedy Institute of Bio-Ethics, Georgetown University. Among her publications are 12 articles on Health and Religion in the magazine Enquiry and a 300-page report, "The Needs and Concerns of Downtown Brooklyn University Students," written as a research consultant in university work for the Brooklyn Central YMCA. She is the daughter of Dr. Edwin H. Rian (Asst. to President McCord for Development) and Mrs. Rian.

2. Over the past several years Princeton Seminary students have worked out a special order of service and book of prayers and traditional readings of the Church for these fifteen-minute periods of worship and meditation. A lectionary unique to the Seminary has been compiled for the Old Testament and New Testament readings. Officially approved by the Seminary, Morning and Evening Prayer offers a discipline of setting aside time to hear the Word and to pray. Begin the day and the evening in the Lord! Come join us! Any questions or comments may be directed to Dave Carlisle, 302 Alexander (921-6511), or to Judy Gerlitz, 311 Hodge (921-7774).

3. Want an alternative to the women's groups on campus? Join us on Monday evenings in North Hall, H-1, at 7:30. A short time of fellowship, recreation, intellectual pursuit, or just plain talk, in an effort to meet your needs and allow flexibility for your ideas and interests. We welcome students and wives and student wives and women who would just like to share some of life with each other. Myra Kail.

4. ARTISTS! Troubled by the lack of artistic expression on campus? Don't suppress creativity because someone has told you it is not academic or religious. We've been given these talents by God. Join with us in using and improving your artistic talents! You are needed and wanted--to set displays, create banners, plan workshops, do art. Join us! Contact me if you have questions. Bonnie Halsey, 409 Brown Hall (924-4246).

5. We are trying to get together students with literary gifts or interests--first to meet one another, then to work together on literary projects. We will be organizing with university students to begin work on a Christian literary periodical which will be an expression of the larger Christian community in Princeton. All kinds of writers, enjoyers, artists, cartoonists, poets and sympathizers are welcome! Stephen Holloway.

The Seminary will, as usual, sell tickets for the Princeton University football games this year. Saturday, 27 September, is the classic annual with Rutgers, in Princeton. Tickets ($2.00) are at the information desk, Administration Building.

Saturday mornings (weather permitting) the SEMINARY COMMUNITY plays soccer at the Mercer Street field (10 A.M. - lunchtime). The Middler/Senior classes have challenged the Juniors to a match--the losers to provide suitable refreshments for the enjoyment of all participants (shades of Rugby!)

Those of you who are interested in having an October GOLF TOURNAMENT, please see me. (Student rates at Springdale are very reasonable.) Andy Dearman, 206 Brown.

MILLER CHAPEL ORGAN USE

The use of the organ in Miller Chapel is controlled by the full-time faculty member who is designated as Director of Music. In the event there is no full-time faculty member designated as Director of Music, the control is then exercised by either the professor of Preaching and Worship, or the Business Manager. The director, or alternate as mentioned above, is expected to control the use of the organ by requiring a measure of competency on the part of guest organists for weddings and other special services. The organ may be used by the following:

1. Regularly enrolled students of Princeton Seminary who have demonstrated a competency in the use of the organ and whose competence has been certified in writing by the Director of Music and who have paid in advance to Princeton Seminary Business Office a non-returnable fee of $50.00.

2. Those designated by the Director of Music as bona fide substitute organists for the stated Chapel Services of the Seminary.

3. Individuals from outside the Seminary community who have been certified by the Director of Music and who are to play for weddings and other special services.

The organ may not be used by individuals who are not members of the Seminary community other than specified above, for weddings and special services. The director and/or alternates, as mentioned, have supervision over the Music Room, pianos, and all equipment related to them. The hours for choir rehearsals have precedence over interest groups when they wish to use the organ, as described above, may pick up the keys from the Chapel Secretary and sign out for them on the log sheet used for that purpose. The keys must be returned to the Chapel Office and the individual should be sure the records indicate the keys have been returned.

Violations of the above regulations will result in the cancellation of all privileges for the individuals concerned. W. E. Lawder.

UPUSA SENIORS: All United Presbyterian Seniors planning to take the Ordination Esaminations, 13-15 November 1975, should come to the Field Education Office IMMEDIATELY to pick up applications. D. Mackenzie

PRINCETON SEMINARY STEWARDSHIP COMMITTEE NOTES:

THE PRINCETON SEMINARY STEWARDSHIP COMMITTEE WILL MEET TODAY, 9 OCTOBER, IN THE ALUMNI ROOM, CAMPUS CENTER, FROM 4:15 TO 5:15.

The Committee enables the Seminary, a community united by its faith in Christ, to respond as a community to pressing human needs. There are three sorts of response: money, personal help and education. Each fall the Committee receives from faculty and students suggestions of concerns to be supported, deriving from field work experience, interest in the work of a graduate or as the result of such disasters as famine, war or cyclones. They may also arise in emergencies in the lives of persons on campus.

In 1975 International Students' Scholarship Aid, the Princeton Street Ministry, Prison Services, Famine Relief and the Emergency Fund (for unforeseen personal needs) were some of the concerns for the annual Stewardship Fund Drive. $2300 was collected. A special fund-raising effort in the spring, featuring a student-faculty talent show, raised another $350 toward an ambulance for the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, of which the President and the Chaplain were both Seminary students.

Volunteer helpers are enlisted for such services as transportation, babysitting or special skills, when the need is unusual and payment is not possible. Through Chapel services, displays, mailings and notices or articles in The Wineskin the Committee brings to the Seminary an increased understanding of the Christian interpretation of stewardship and a practical demonstration of its power. Association with the Committee brings its members a rich reward in interests, associations and the satisfaction of important accomplishment. MEMBERS FOR ACADEMIC YEAR 1975-76 include: Robert J. Faser (203 Alexander Hall), Catherine C. Snyder (414 Hodge, 924-7645), Robert R. Kopp (2 Wheeler Way, A-2, 452-1361), Paul G. Watermulder (301 Emmons, A-1, 452-1192), Judson S. Halsey (409 Brown), Peter R. J. Del Nagro (202 Hodge), Nicholas E. and Terry Stine TeBordo (924-5395), Stephen E. Hollaway (306 Alexander) and Deborah L. Clifford (415 Brown), together with Dr. William H. Felmeth, Alexander T. Getty and William E. Lawder. Dr. Cullen I K Story is chairman, and Dr. James I. McCord is a member ex-officio.

Any member of the Seminary Community who knows of a worthy project for the Seminary Conference to consider--please bring the concern to the chairman or to a committee member.

YOU HAVE BEEN WARNED!!

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

These last two weeks would have been unbearable without your prayers and concern for us. God has shown us abundantly that concern can be and is a real thing in our midst.

Thank you all for cards, prayers, flowers, thoughts, and the many kind deeds, which we certainly did notice. We wish we could thank you each individually.

Ministering to our own is a great blessing.

Thanks to you all!

God's blessing,
Nick and Terrie TeBordo

NOTICES

A Day of Prayer--

A Day of Prayer calls us to the freedom of setting our studying into the context of prayer. It is freedom to pray and to learn about prayer. The Day of Prayer is an opportunity to let prayer grow as an integrated part of our lives. Prayer is the relationship we have with God first and then with other people and the world.

The Day is opened and closed with prayer services for hearing the Word and praying in forms the Church has used for centuries. After the three talks throughout the day are times for discussion about prayer and for praying. In the afternoon we take part in the tradition of prayer being sung liturgically. After a period of silence and contemplation we will move into intercessory prayers of concern for the world. This leads us into an affirmation of our Christianity as we celebrate the Lord's Supper.

During the day we shall have prayed as individuals, whether in groups or alone. The whole day then challenges us not to limit prayer to worship, devotion and fellowship. Prayer is manifested in our activity and mission as Christians.

Come share one day set asice specifically for prayer.

David L. H. Carlisle

DIRECTORY DISTRIBUTION: The Directory, now at the bindery, will be delivered shortly. Each member of the Seminary faculty and staff will receive in the campus mail (or in the U.S. mail, if the member is not on campus) an appropriate number of copies for home and office use.

SEMINARIANS ARE REMINDED that ALL distribution of the Directory is from the Public Relations Office. Both for the protection of students and because of the high cost per volume of the publication, requestors other than Seminary personnel must be processed through this office, regardless of the reasons for their interest in securing these "mailing lists."

Your cooperation is urgently requested. Cara Davis Smith.

BLOODMOBILE COMING: The BLOODMOBILE IS COMING TO OUR AUDITORIUM ON THURSDAY, 6 NOVEMBER. Please check next week's Wineskin for details. Clarence E. Reed.

GRADUATE WIVES: The Graduate Wives' Fellowship will not meet during the remainder of the academic year because of apparent lack of need for the group.

Co-Facilitators: Rosemarie Nash, Margaret Schipani.

FRITSCH ON ISRAEL FINDS: Dr. Charles T. Fritsch will discuss "Recent Archaeological Discoveries in the Holy Land Important to the Bible" at the 30 October meeting of the Archaeology Club at 6:15 P.M. in the Main Lounge of the Campus Center. Dr. Fritsch will show a series of slides on recent finds in Israel. There will be time for discussion and reflection on the sites mentioned. (Please try to eat early, so that the presentation may start on time!!) D. J. Steinbrook.

COMMUNION ELEMENTS: Any person qualified in his or her church to distribute the elements at Communion, please contact Elisabeth Jameson, 157 Erdman Hall, or Sherry Brabham, 400 Hodge Hall, for the list we are compiling.

Lynda Tonking, The Women's Center.

AN ALTERNATIVE is growing, providing a warm fellowship of saring each other for personal growth. Our activities range from intellectual gab to physical action. If this sounds as though it could be your thing, join us--we'd love to have you. Ann Horn (921-1566).

MAR THOMA SERVICE: Sunday, 2 November, Miller Chapel. 1:30 P.M. A cordial invitation is extended to all Seminarians to share in worship with the Mar Thoma Community. The Reverend K.S. Mathew, a PTS student is the clerical president and spiritual leader.

Excerpts from REFORMED PIETY AND CONSUMER PIETISM, by David Willis
Prepared for U. P. Seminaries at the Request of the Council of Theological Seminaries

* * * * * * *

It is high time for us in theological schools to take thorough stock again of where we are on the matter of spiritual formation...Letting worship be captured by the pietists or professional liturgists, many of us have treated spirituality with indifference or with the suspicion (often accurate) that it is a religious diversion from real obedience.

There is, and always has been, a market for the religiosity of private salvation and of the salvation of private property. Such consumer pietism can well seek theological justification under the clamor for Reformed piety. By contrast, recovering at least some of the sense of pietas in the Reformed tradition, as opposed to the pietism of recent custom, will help restore the indissoluble connection between being united to Christ and sharing his worldly ministry.

The most important feature of piety in the Reformed tradition is that it is a part of Christian freedom. Piety is that boldness which results when members of the Christian community are moved by the Spirit to take to heart the liberating and reconciling word of God. To put it otherwise, piety is the experience of being united to Christ by faith and so being joined to the community which extends his rule in the world. This practice of Christian freedom is characterized by a tough-minded Christ-asceticism which comes from reliving the narrative of God's fidelity, of actively remembering who we are called to become. Christian freedom, Christocentric mysticism, and secular involvement in the light of Christ's lordship are the same thing...This form of mysticism is not an escape hatch from this world, but involves identifying the particular gift one is to exercise as a member of Christ's body here, now, in this saeculum.

Sovereignty of God, therefore secular responsibility; forgiveness by merciful Lord, therefore new self-image and apostolic praxis here and now; Christ the transformer of culture, therefore worldly asceticism among his followers--these are the coordinates of Reformed piety. When we are tempted to cut God down to the size of one who makes no claims, enters no covenants, hears no groans of oppressed peoples, suffers nothing along with us, then the ancients/gutsy/confessional language is timely: "Arise, O Lord, and let thine enemies be confounded; let them flee from thy presence that hate thy Godly Name. Give thy servants strength to speak thy Word with boldness, and let all nations cleave to the true knowledge of thee. Amen!" (Scots Confession, ad finem). For What if what we have called the death of God is neither metaphysical theothanatology or just the obvious cultural demise of symbols adequate to speak of God? What if the flattening out of an obsequiously secularist (not secular) Christianity is not merely a subjective problem, the correction of which requires only that we invent and rearrange structures and symbols and get on with religious production? What if our condition really reflects something that the transcending God, who becomes immanent in Jesus the Christ, is "up to?" What if our predicament really corresponds to his initiative so that we good, modern, efficient Christians learn what his absence, his hiding his face, really means?

Perhaps the most important thing about any recovery of piety is learning again the fear of the Lord, learning to wait for him, learning to move in the desert when the shekinah moves and to wait when it does not. Perhaps the most important thing is learning to face the startling fact that when all is said and done our worship, ethics and thought can only be responses to the mysterium tremendum which is God's freely stooping low to make his people faithful. The fear of this Lord who overrules us by his forgiveness is the beginning of sanity. Such a recognition might even make us prodigals come to ourselves and return to be received by the one who allowed us to go off into a far country. We might even discover that the "crisis of spirituality" is exactly not that we have not found the right things to do to "encourage" it, but that God is in the process of restoring us by reminding us of our ultimate dependence upon him if we are to be penultimately "effective," "viable" in restoring our taste for living which is ordered, redeemed and sanctified by him.

The fundamental fact behind the Church's and seminaries' confusion over spirituality is really amnesia about the meaning of the story. In the Reformed tradition, piety, indeed faith itself, is a response to the work of God in the history leading up to, through and beyond Jesus Christ. Knowledge of the story of God's fidelity, his demands and promises, is indispensable for piety. Where there is no active remembrance and celebration of the story of God's initiative, all you get is idolatrous religion, the product of man's remarkably fertile imagination. All the religious gimmicks in the world, whether they be well or poorly executed, only serve to cover up the loss of the central, overwhelming, awesome fact of God's liberating and reconciling presence and activity in history as testified to at great cost by people whom he has caught up in his movement. All the other pathologies derive from this loss of the centrality of the Word as event in our midst--revealed, proclaimed and written. The false dichotomy between inner resources and outward service, the false split between individual religion and civil religion, the equation of piety with private religion and ethics with public religion--all these derive from a misunderstanding of the way the Word is mediated and responded to, and of the totality of claims which the Word makes on us.

We can no longer assume that people in seminaries have even a minimal knowledge of the external history of God's people, much less of its inner or existential meaning. I would guess one big mistake we are making is to try to jump too quickly to the inner meaning minus the rootage in tradition history, with the result that we get a cult based not on rediscovering the meaning of God's initiative in history but a cult based on our feelings--or really based on what we feel about our feelings. One of the implications of recovering the centrality of the Word revealed, proclaimed and written as event is that the curriculum keeps its focus on training professionals whose authority for leadership rests on their ability to facilitate the Word's becoming an event for equipping a congregation for mission. This requires attention to the skill of drawing analogies, and in knowing that the hermeneutical task is only one of drawing analogies between what the text meant then and there and what it means here and now. This aims at preserving the distinctness of the different historical settings in which the Word has become event, rather than solving the hermeneutical problem by minimizing the cultural, economic and political settings which are the matrix for the community's mission.

We have said that Reformed piety involves a special kind of knowledge. So we have got to stay awake shooing away the raucous anti-intellectualism that roosts in our seminaries. Theology is affective knowledge, faith seeking understanding. As such, it involves rigorous intellectual discipline in whatever field of the theological curriculum one is engaged. It is up to faculties to maintain, perhaps recover, a firmness about what constitutes at least a minimum of skills and basic data for a person to be able to begin the pastorate, or other professional ministry, in the first years out of school. Such preparation simply requires time and it requires introduction to certain disciplines. There can be no short-cuts if we are not, as it were, to turn loose on unsuspecting patients well-intentioned, sensitive types who, however, have chosen not to do anatomy, basic chemistry or diagnosis. The requisite quality control in our seminaries will involve some unpopularity, but one thing is clear: the competitive deescalation of standards in "mainline" theological schools is eventually going to kill us all, and we will watch, with defensive grumbling, God working through those we have chosen to dismiss as impossible "conservatives." And (O bitter surprise!) in some cases they will give us a run for the Church's money, not because they are more conservative but because they have been scrambling for academic integrity while we have been polishing the old school trophies.

Here is where something analogous to the third use of the law bites into our hides: we must be corrected by internal, personal acceptance of requirements which are a necessary help, a useful accommodation to our weakness! The gospel frees us, faculty and students alike, for the rigorous vocation of practicing Christian and applied scholarship. Harbison's book on the role of Christian scholars in the midst of rapid social change is even more apt now than when it was written almost two decades ago. Remember, we are talking about piety. We are talking about the pursuit of one's vocation, in this world, with worldly asceticism. That means, in the case of theological seminaries, practicing the special expertise required of professional Church leaders today.

The knowledge of God's benefits comes through cultic act as much as through formal study. Much of the content of theological education, the what and not just the how, results directly from the worship of the community. Here we are dealing with the norm of worship (lex orandi) and its relation to the norm of doctrine (lex credendi) --and I would add, to the norms of teaching and action (lex docendi and lex agendi). The crisis of piety in seminary education is that we have let the lex orandi fall into disuse by taking it for granted, and this has left us to try to inflate the currency of our curricula. We find it perplexing to try to teach theology or to try to engage in social action, without the motivational foundation and alignment of ultimate loyalties and support of the communio sanctorum which the lex orandi provides. Above, I spoke about the amnesia which is killing the Church. But what is most serious about our present case of amnesia is that we have forgotten how to remember. People remember more by smells, postures, sounds and colors than by "memorizing" or "bringing to mind." Israel and the Church remember by acting and reenacting the saving drama. Cultic reenactment is central to the identity and mission of God's people.

The norm of doctrine says as much about the content of worship as it does about the content of teaching. It points to certain perennial configurations of Christian worship. Christian worship is above all an act in which the constitutive elements of the sacred story, the economy of events which give the Church its specific identity in memory and hope, are represented to evoke continual repentance and renewal. God's word must be freshly heard and freshly acted out, Christ's presence must be rerealized, faith must be reawakened and strengthened, the community must be reestablished through covenanting again to be God's liberating and reconciling practitioners. As long as these elements are present many different forms of worship in many different settings and times are both to be expected and encouraged in seminaries today.

Having said that and acknowledged the fact of pluralism at the very core of any seminary's composition today, I shall declare myself for a recovery of those catholic rhythms of worship which seem to me best designed to offset the rampant subjectivity and frivolous whim taking over when those in charge of worship feel they must create, the more ex nihilo the better, a new "mountain-top" or "gut-level" experience at each gathering...Christ is present to faith, yes, but not necessarily to religious feeling. That, in a nutshell, is what continues to plague much of pietism. The focus is still on the religious disposition of those who are sufficiently sentimental, introspective, "sensitive" to go in for that sort of thing. And the most nefarious form of this pietism is its mod expression, precisely because it deludes itself into thinking it has put "pietism" behind. In reality, the focus is more than ever before on the feelings of the religious devotees, now fatally reinforced by Esalenitis. The symbol for this mod pietism would be a huge bull's eye mirror in place of the cross, so the congregation--or narcissistic audience--can "celebrate" its feeling of togetherness.

We have said for so long that the family is not the Church (which is true enough) that we have perhaps actually engendered guilt among those who would otherwise pay more attention to what it means to be the Church also in their family contexts. Obviously, I am not tying the daily practices down to family patterns, especially at a time when former styles of family life are undergoing tremendous pressures causing many to feel that their liberation involves exactly breaking away from the family. But, the point remains that where the practice of being God's people in diaspora is going to occur it will occur in small social groupings of people who have developed patterns of common life, common daily chores, common meals, common patterns of mutual correction and mutual support. Morning reading and prayer, evening reading and prayer, grace at meals--this may seem to be a minimal thing when faced with the huge task of spiritual formation. But, in the long run, this rhythmic routine has a way of leaving an impression, if not an indelible mark, on the baptized community which finds many times and forms of gathering.

This is at least the realism behind the Deuteronomic provision for an environment of active remembrance whereby the daily necessities of life are made bearers of these symbols which keep Israel asking the right questions...The Deuteronomic material is given the literary setting of Moses preparing the people for their entering into the land and for the conquest that will mean--obviously a warning against those temptations to which Israel was already succumbing in the Deuteronomist's mind. It is when confronted by the awesome future of mission that the people of God need the remembrance of that narrative, acting out and extending which they are faithful to God's covenanting purposes. It is on this heritage that Jesus draws in the story of his testing in the wilderness immediately upon his baptism and before entering the conflicts of his ministry. He is equipped out of this cultic remembrance, and his ultimate loyalties are tested and fortified for the ministry on which he is entering. We today who presume to affirm that we are called to share in the total ministry of Christ through all his people will relearn the meaning of this testing. We will have the wisdom to practice over and again the realignment of our ultimate loyalties, not as diversion from but as essential part of our worldly calling.

NOTES

1. Dr. Somerville holds honors degrees from Trinity College, University of Glasgow. After serving pastorates in Sterlingshire, Scotland, and the Central Park Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama, he was called to the First Church in Philadelphia--"The mother church of American Presbyterianism." He has lectured in homiletics at the Conwell School of Theology (Temple University) and at Crozer Seminary. The Princeton University Gospel Ensemble will give a 20-minute concert before the service and will sing during it.

2. "Heaven Help the Home" presents a Christian perspective on family living. For a copy of the book, contact Alberta Giddens, South Hall.

3. Mr. Lawson, who was earlier a minister in Memphis, Tennessee, has been for many years a leader in the black community's struggle for civil rights and was a colleague of the late Martin Luther King, Jr. Jailed during his college years for his Christian pacifist views, he was paroled to the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church, for which he served as a missionary in India. Formerly chairman of the World Council of Churhces' study commission on violence, non-violence and the struggle for justice, he now is President of the Black Methodists for Church Renewal and is a director of the Fellowship of Reconciliation. Born in Uniontown, Pennsylvania, he is a graduate of the Baldwin-Wallace College and has attended the Oberlin College Graduate School of Theology, the Divinity School of Vanderbilt University and Boston University. Grace Charles and Richard Diets of FOR will be on campus to meet with students on Wednesday, 12 November. They will be in the Campus Center during the coffee hour and the lunch hour to talk about the activities of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship.

UNITED FUND RESPONSE: Letters inviting support were sent to 158 members of the Seminary staff, faculty, administration, secretaries, grounds and kitchen crews. Sixty-one have responded so far, of whom 42 have given through the Seminary, while others have supported elsewhere. At this time $1,734 have been contributed to help several agencies in Princeton and the neighborhood aid those who need particular services. This is the best response the Seminary staff has made in several years. It is still not too late to share with us in helping the community, if you have a mind (and heart) to do so. William H. Felmeth.

BAKE BOBBY RIGGS: The third Annual Bobby Riggs Memorial Bake Sale sponsored by the Men's Auxiliary of the Princeton Seminary Women's Center is scheduled for Thursday, 4 December. SEMINARY CONFERENCE

Any person who desires to have items brought before the Seminary Conference should make them known to the representatives before the 25 November meeting of the Executive Committee. These items include complaints, needs and problems of the entire Seminary Community. The next meeting of the Conference will be 2 December. Jack McAnlis.

STEWARDSHIP COMMITTEE:

The Stewardship Committee has chosen the following verse from I John as the theme for its fall all-Seminary canvass: "Little children, let us not love in word or speech but in deed and truth." We ask you now as children of God and as a community of believers to support our drive by sharing a portion of your finances with those who are in need. We ask that you join us in contributing to the International Student Scholarship Fund, the Community Council for Criminal Justice, the Rural Community Action Ministry in Maine, C.R.O.P., Corrymeela (in Ireland) and to the relocation of a Vietnamese family here in Princeton. When the "stewardship callers" come to you, we ask that you welcome them. Further, we ask that you place your gifts in the "stewardship box" with the receptionist in the Administration Building, or that you mail them to the Seminary (care of the Stewardship Committee). There will be a special "Stewardship Chapel" on Tuesday, 18 November, at 10 A.M. ; and at the chapel service on Friday, 21 November, our gifts will be dedicated to our God. We thank you and so will the beneficiaries, and together we will thank God.

The Stewardship Committee.

BLOODMOBILE REPORT:

On behalf of all the Seminary Community I wish to thank those who donated blood last Thursday, when the Bloodmobile visited our campus. I also thank those who donate at the Medical Center of Princeton throughout the year, because this is an integral part of the program. Unfortunately, I do not have the exact figures yet; but we must be very near to meeting our quota for the 1975 year. I DO know that there were 163 pints of blood donated Thursday, which represents 73 donors from the Seminary Community and 90 from small local businesses which do not have facilities for a Bloodmobile. It is a good feeling to know that you have helped someone in need and that, along with the appreciation of the Seminary Community, should give all donors a feeling of deep satisfaction. Clarence E. Reed, Co-Chairman, Blood Program.

AMNESTY PETITION:

Beginning Monday, 17 November 1975, you will have the opportunity to sign a petition calling for President Ford to grant UNCONDITIONAL AMNESTY to those men who refused to be drafted to fight in the Vietnam War. It will be available in the Campus Center. Please prayerfully consider your support of this petition. We have a real opportunity to participate in a ministry of reconciliation. Questions concerning the petition may be directed to Paul Swedlund, 452-1229. Paul Swedlund.

SHORTER CATECHISM EXAM.:

The examination on the Shorter Catechism will be given at 7:30 P.M. on Monday, 8 December 1975, in the Homiletics Seminar Room (Room 5) in the basement of Miller Chapel. Please sign up in the Chapel Office. Donald Macleod.

WOMEN SEMINARIANS:

A nearby presbytery has asked for the names of women seminarians who might be willing to serve as supply preachers, guest preachers and preachers for special occasions. If you are interested, fill in the form for supply preaching available in Don Lewis' office (14 Administration Building basement).

Mary Margaret Johnson Thiel.

SPEER BOOK SALE:

Speer Library will have on Monday, 17 November 1975, a sale in which approximately 1,000 uncatalogued duplicates accumulated over a number of years will be made available to members of the Seminary Community. Terms of the sale: $2 per hardback, $1 for a paperback (unless the list price--if it is available--is lower, in the latter case, than $2. In this case the paperback sale price will be 1/2 of the list price).

A variety of subjects, all theological, are available; and there is also a variety of imprint dates. Many were published within the past few years; others, earlier in this century or late in the 19th Century. This is only a small portion of the total number of similar volumes which we will consider making available, if the results of the attempt this time around are satisfactory.

The sale, in Speer Library, will run from 12:30 to 3 and from 6 to 7:30 P.M.

Charles Willard.

MEN AND TE URCH SMINAR: The Center of Continuing Education will offer an 8-11 December seminar on "Women and the Church," to be led by Ms. Jean Huffman. Students are permitted to attend Continuing Education seminars free of charge. If you are interested in attending, please get in touch with Mary Margaret Thiel in the Field Education office.

NESTY RSOLUTION: A resolution calling for President Ford to grant unconditional amnesty to those men who refused to be drafted and fight in the war in Vietnam is posted on the bulletin board in the Campus Center lobby. Please prayerfully consider your support of this resolution and then sign it, if you are moved to do so. The amnesty problem seriously affects the lives of many people; and, whatever your decision, your thoughtfulness concerning this problem will be appreciated. The resolution will be sent to President Ford and leading members of Congress in approximately two weeks, so that all students, faculty members and staff will have time to sign it if they wish. We all have a real opportunity to participate in a ministry of reconciliation. Questions concerning the resolution may be directed to Paul Swedlund (452-1229).

KED BBY: The third Annual Bobby Riggs Memorial Bake Sale (4 December) can raise more money for the Women's Center if YOU volunteer your kitchen, utensils and/or baking skills. Faculty expertise highly valued! Contact Paul Rorem or Sam Cooper by campus mail--or at 924-6335.

NGRATULATIONS TO:

USTEE BYANT M. KRKLAND: [rom the Nw York Imes.] "The Reverend Dr. Bryant M. Kirkland [38B. ed.], pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church [New York City], told his congregation recently that he was sending a check for $1,350 on his and his wife's behalf to the city to help it avoid defeault.

"He proposed in his sermon that others 'who also love New York' follow suit. Dr. Kirkland told worshipers that the city needed $1.4 billion and that if two million New Yorkers each contributed $675 the city would be out of debt 'by Christmas.'

"His proposal was greeted by a standing ovation, an unusual occurrence in the Fifth Avenue Church. At the coffee hour after the morning service, Dr. Kirkland said an additional $10,000 had been pledged by church members."

Deadline for all materials for the next issue of The Wineskin, covering the period 7 - 13 December 1975, is 12 noon Tuesday, 2 December 1975. It is suggested that groups which hold weekly meetings and wish these posted in each issue of The Wineskin send reminders to the editor. PLEASE check with the official calendar in the office of the Director of Housing before scheduling any on-campus meeting. All materials should be typed or legibly printed; if at all possible, a telephone number should be included in case your item is questionable, whether because information is inadvertently omitted or because some unforeseen important event arises which might make you prefer to postpone your meeting. EMINARY ONFER- NCE: REPORT: Meeting of 2 December 1975.

Dr. Arthur M. Byers, Jr., explained that the Senior M.Div. Information forms (1) enable him to learn about students with whom he will be working and (2) provide consistent information for the archives. Information upon the forms, completion of which is not mandatory, is confidential. A forum during which Dr. Byers and interested Seniors may discuss the forms is proposed.

The $10 monthly charge added to P-W rents for pet owners was discussed with Mr. Lawder, who will meet with tenants with alternative proposals. The charge is approximately the same levied in neighboring apartment houses.

A selection of cold foods is available in the cafeteria on Sunday mornings, 7:30-8 o'clock; hot breakfasts will be available after 8 A.M.

Dean Adams reported that the 1976-77 academic year should see a rise from $900 to $1,050 for a one-day position in Field Education; and from $1,200 to $1,500 for a two-day position.

The following group will consider an on-campus counseling service: Dean Adams, Ms. Foster, Messrs. Kail and Nau, Ms. Snyder, Mr. Yii, Mr. Hathaway and, perhaps, Ms. Gardner, who worked on the problem two years ago. [Continued overleaf.]

The Seminary Conference will meet again: 4 February, 4 p.m.; 17 March, 4 p.m.; 5 April (at a time to be determined); 4 May, 3 P.M.

COACH'S CORNER

Hope you didn't eat too much over Christmas--or get lazy--because 5-person team basketball will get under way right after exams. Teams of friends are now being formed, so make plans to play. The competition will be good--better practice when you're not studying for exams! A. Dearman.
